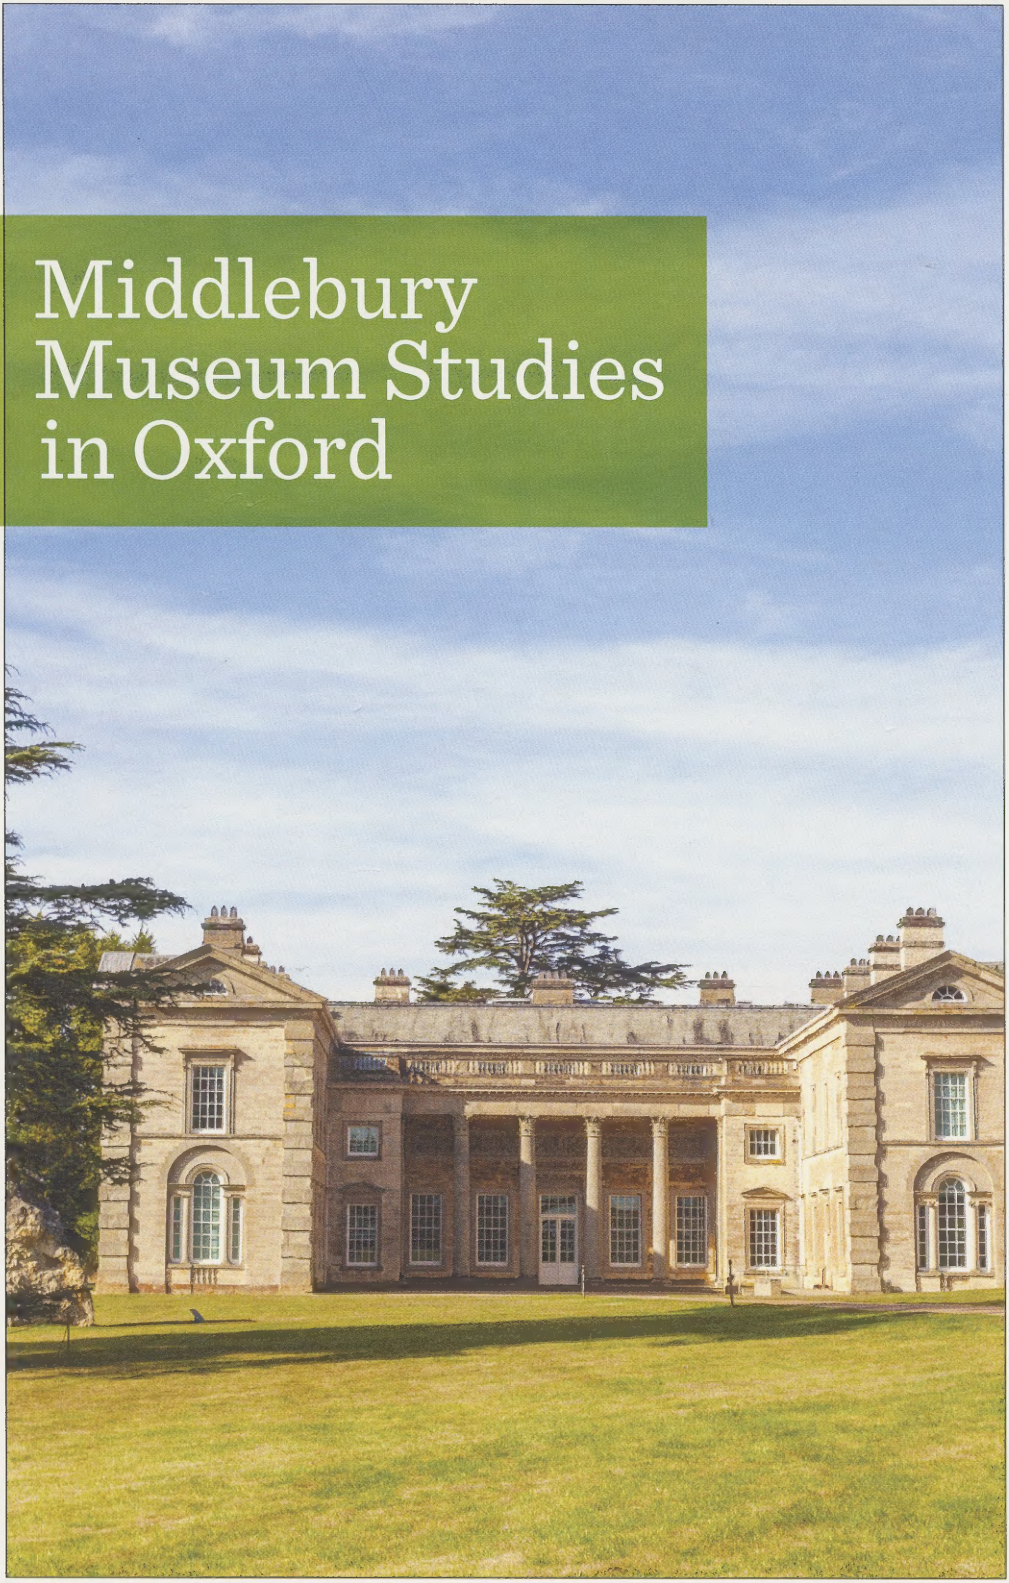
Middlebury Museum Studies in Oxford



Undergraduates from American colleges and universities can spend 6 weeks of the summer in the heart of Oxford, England. Students have access to renowned museum collections at Compton Verney, the Ashmolean Museum, the Natural History Museum, and the Museum of the History of Science.

Students will gain unparalleled insights into the structure, management, and activities of museums and experience a critical introduction to the British approach to historic preservation.

Middlebury Museum Studies in Oxford is housed at St. Michael's Hall, a facility that is well equipped with lecture and seminar rooms, common rooms, a kitchen and dining area, and a library.

HIGHLIGHTS

- An intensive week of experiential learning with staff at Compton Verney, an 18th-century estate and museum site (pictured on front side)
- Select tours led by museum professionals at Oxford's Ashmolean Museum, Museum of Natural History, and Museum of the History of Science
- Private tours of college collections and archives in Oxford
- Weekly field trips to historic properties and collections in London and southern England
- Two credit-bearing courses taught by British experts in art history, architectural history, and museum studies: How British Museums Work and Perspectives on Heritage
- Weekly seminars, lectures, and opportunities for experiential learning
- Access to Oxford University's Bodleian Library

ELIGIBILITY

- GPA of 3.0 or above

APPLICATION DEADLINE

April 1

CONTACT

schoolsabroad@middlebury.edu
802-443-5745

Middlebury C.V. Starr Schools Abroad

For fees, dates, details, university specifics, and to apply visit www.middlebury.edu/study-abroad/museumstudiesoxford